Sports Therapy Sciences and Health Careers Technology Teamed Up for a Valuable Lesson

Last month, Sports Therapy Sciences and Health Careers Technology teamed up to study and develop their leadership skills. The session was led by Michelle Sweitzer from Compass Mark, who provided training in leadership, listening, and communication skills. The students participated in a variety of hands on activities to exercise and challenge their current skillset. When asked about the training, Mykala Kile, Health Careers student from Northern Lebanon said, "It is important to be mature and responsible when it comes to being a leader." A take away from the session was figuring out when to step up and lead and when to step back and be part of the team. Mrs. Hanna Seyfert, Sports Therapy Sciences instructor, stated that all the students have leadership qualities. Their chosen career paths will require them, but I think the students came away with what qualities are considered leadership qualities and which are appropriate to use at certain times." Keishla Garcia, Sports Therapy student from Cedar Crest stated, "I really enjoyed how even though two classes were in the conference, we came together as one to figure out certain activities like the blanket flip activity. I learned that I need to work on some leadership qualities like being more open and speaking up. I would recommend this conference to future students, future professionals, and anyone who wants to make a change." Michelle concluded the session by discussing how drugs, alcohol and other addictions can impair your judgment and communication skills along with the choices you make. We would like to thank Michelle and Compass Mark for offering this excellent opportunity for the students at the CTC.

Spring Gala Buffet 2018

On Tuesday, March 20, the Culinary and Pastry Arts students prepared dinner for the spring Occupational Advisory Committee Dinner meeting. The students planned the entire menu and began preparing for this event weeks ahead of time. Overall, the evening was a great success. Luckily, the impending snow storm held off and the night went on as planned!

Many hours of hard work went into this event during the school day as well as after school. Many students chose to stay after school the day before to work under LCCTC Culinary and Pastry Apprentice students and prepare for the following night. Students also had the opportunity to experience preparation for a high-volume event, as we seated around 200. They also learned new cooking techniques as well as food presentation.

In addition, Pastry Arts students worked alongside Chef Peffley's Pastry Apprentice students to create the dessert buffet for the Occupational Advisory Dinner Meeting. They prepared many new items such as French macarons, tiramisu, and panna cotta. Students even had the opportunity to make gluten free desserts. Under the direction of Chef Corle, Culinary Arts Chef, the Culinary Arts students prepared combination salads and other cold appetizers as well as hot entrees and carving stations.
