

On April 13, Mrs. Mays' senior law enforcement students participated in "OC Spray Day." In class, the students became certified in basic OCAT. The students were given the opportunity to be exposed to Oleoresin Capsicum by receiving spray directly in their face, inhaling/smelling the Oleoresin Capsicum from a paper bag, or no exposure. I had 12 students opt to receive the direct exposure and one student who chose to be exposed to OC by smelling it from a paper bag. The students soon realized pain after being exposed to OC, but all of them shared with me how happy they were that they chose to participate in "OC Spray Day."

The students became OCAT certified by receiving four hours of classroom instruction, taking a written exam, performing tactical stances, and optional OC exposure. Health Career students assisted during "OC Spray Day" by decontaminating the students who were sprayed. They cleaned the students' faces, flushed their eyes with water, and used the water hose to provide relief of the burning sensation. Cosmetology students also assisted by washing the student's hair several times to eliminate possible reactivation later in the day. Our school nurse, Mrs. Kreiser, participated by offering her assistance to help decontaminate and ensure the students did not have allergic reactions or alarming side effects.

The day was a success and a memorable event.

SkillsUSA State Leadership Conference

Our students had a great experience at the SkillsUSA state competition! We had multiple gold, silver and bronze medalists but more importantly these students had the opportunity to meet other students from all over our state who share the same passion for their trade. We at CTC are proud of all of their hard work and accomplishments. Good luck to all the gold medalist heading to Nationals!

Lebanon County Educational Honor Society Inducts Lori Mattis, Health Careers Technology Instructor

The Lebanon County Educational Honor Society inducted Lori Mattis into membership during the 58th Annual Dinner meeting that was held at the Fort Indiantown Gap Community Center. Over 200 members attended. The Lebanon County Educational Honor Society is an organization that honors professional employees for good teaching skills in the public schools of Lebanon County. Teachers are eligible after ten years of service in the field of education in Lebanon County schools. Members elect a candidate yearly. The honor society also awards scholarships to students who would like to pursue a career in education. An educator of the year is also selected and honored at the dinner meeting. Currently the Lebanon County Career and Technology Center has 24 members. Congratulations Lori!

Congratulations—Lori Mattis!

Lebanon Family Health Services STI Day~April

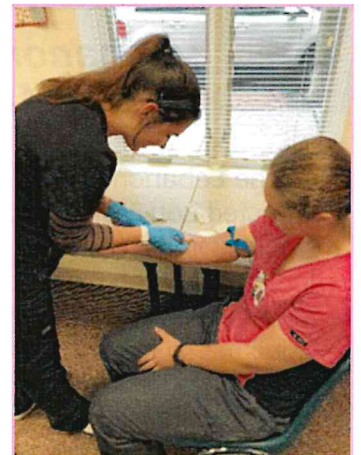

"As always, your students did an awesome job! Thank you for the support you provide for LFHS!! We are grateful for all you do!"

These are the comments from Donna Williams, COO of LFHS. We thank Donna and her staff for allowing our students to learn from them and the expertise that they possess.

21 Medical Assisting students from Mrs. Wike's and Mrs. Gehman's class spent the day at the LFHS assisting with the STI day by drawing blood, collecting urine and interacting with patients from the walk-in clinic. We do this twice a year and enjoy every minute of it. It is always great experience for the students and they receive exceptional hands-on skills and valuable community interaction. All 21 students had an exciting day and are grateful for the opportunity to use their skills that they learned in their Medical Assisting program.

Lebanon Family Health Services STI Day~April

Urinary tract infections can be the first sign of a sexually transmitted infection.

There are 19 million Americans who are diagnosed every year with a new STI.

Jr. Duck Stamp

The Commercial Art and Design class had another outstanding year collecting 3 first place, 1 second place and 1 third place award in different categories. All the other entries were honorable mention. More than 300 duck paintings were entered from the state of Pennsylvania, so this was quite an accomplishment for the entire Commercial Art program.

Students are required to choose ducks that are native to Pennsylvania or cross the state in the Atlantic flyway. Both male and female species are featured in the students painting. An explanation statement accompanies the painting, which is also judged.

HOSA STUDENTS ADVANCE TO INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

Ashlyn Achey and Elizabeth Manos achieved 1st place in the Health Career Display complete event at the Pennsylvania state level. They will now travel to Dallas, Texas, June 26-July 1, 2018 with Mrs. Brenda Kreamer, HOSA Advisor and Health Careers Technology Instructor, to compete at the International HOSA level.

Congratulations Ashlyn and Lizzy!!
